DRIFTLESS

A MAJOR AMERICAN WRITER RETURNS
AFTER A THIRTY YEAR SILENCE

“Encompassing and incisive, comedic and profound, Driftless is a radiant novel of community and courage.”

Booklist, starred review

“Rhodes shows he still knows how to keep readers riveted....The result is a novel that is as affecting as it is pleasantly overstuffed.”

Publishers Weekly

“Driftless has been a long time coming, but definitely worth the wait.”

Joseph Kanon, author of Los Alamos

“A masterful novel.”

Poets & Writers

As a young man, David Rhodes worked in fields, hospitals, and factories across Iowa. After receiving an MFA in Writing from the University of Iowa Writers Workshop in 1971, he published three novels in rapid succession: The Last Fair Deal Going Down (Atlantic/Little, Brown, 1972), The Easter House (Harper & Row, 1974), and Rock Island Line (Harper & Row, 1975). A motorcycle accident in 1976 left him paralyzed from the waist down, since which time he continued writing but stopped publishing. He lives with his wife, Edna, in Wonewoc, Wisconsin.
